

Jennifer Hock, DEL

With almost 30 years of experience in the veterinary profession, Dr. Jennifer Hock brings a wealth of leadership and operational expertise in specialty, emergency, and general practice hospital management. She is skilled at leading veterinary teams, fostering operational excellence and providing leadership development within the field. In addition to her industry contributions, she has served as a part-time adjunct professor at the University of Charleston (WV), teaching active-duty military students in the Graduate Leadership program.

Jennifer holds a Bachelor of Science in Organizational Leadership, a Master of Science in Strategic Leadership, and a Doctorate in Executive Leadership.

Outside of work, Jennifer enjoys traveling and flying planes (when time allows). She is also a devoted servant to her Main Coon, Willow.