

Jocelyn Rodriguez-Correa, DVM

Emergency & Critical Care

Dr. Jocelyn Rodriguez-Correa earned her undergraduate degree from Syracuse University before graduating from St. George's University with her Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree in 2021. After veterinary school, she completed a Critical Care internship at Gulf Coast Veterinary Specialists (GCVS), where she discovered her true passion for Emergency and Critical Care medicine.

Outside of the hospital, Dr. Rodriguez-Correa is an avid sand volleyball player and loves exploring the vibrant city of Houston and uncovering its hidden gems. A dedicated traveler, she's always dreaming about her next adventure. She is also an enthusiastic reader, constantly on the lookout for her next great book.

At home, Dr. Rodriguez-Correa enjoys the company of her "little giant," Xena, a Cane Corso, and Merlin, the family's Rottweiler. She dreams of one day expanding her pet family by owning a mini ranch with cows, goats, and pigs!
